INDEX

Architects and engineers are indexed under 'Architecture', painters, sculptors and craftsmen under 'Art', Catacombs and related late Roman and Paleochristian burial sites under 'Catacomb', churches, chapels and religious houses under 'Church' and fortresses and other fortification works under 'Fort'. Personal names are given under the family name where possible, with occasional cross references. Names are generally given in the form used in the text. For convenience, Maltese letters such as 'gh', 'h' and 'g' have been placed as if they were accented 'Roman' letters.

A

Abbate, Giovanni Battista, 66, 67
Abela, Gian Francesco, 27-37, 39, 49, 51, 54, 151
Accademia di S. Luca, 127
Africa, 44
Agape-tables, 20, 18-21, 26
Agius de Soldanis, Canon G.F., 27n, 3bn
Albertus, Gaspar, 131
Almeida, Roberto, 127
Altmühlmünster, 49, 51, 32
Ambassador Buzi, 69
Amphitheatrum, 51
Anibreto, 26
Anon, 117
Annual Reports of the Valletta Museum, 97
Antiquities Act 1925, 99
Antonio Sciortino Bequest, 105
Antwerp, 43, 103
Apap-Bologna Sale, 123
Archaeological Antiquities of the Marsa neighbourhood, 9n
Archaeological Society of Malta, 7
Architecture (architects and engineers)
— Campi, Scipione, 89-90
— Casar, Girolamo, 80, 85-93
— Cassar, Fra Ludovico, 83-86, 87, 88, 89
— De la Croce, Ascacio, 82, 83, 84, 89

— Ferrante, Antonio, 75
— Genna, Gennaro, 79
— Inggero, Platina, 82, 83, 84, 89
— Lanzel, Gallen-Assa, 74, 79
— Lucarelli, Francesco, 79, 80-84, 85, 89, 151, 152, 153
— Maccheroni, Ottavio, 127
— Massetti, Tommaso, 162
— Menga, Evangelista di, 80
— Pardo, Pietro, 74, 77
— Quiana, Antonino, 77
— Sertoli, Gabriele, 82-83
— Vitelli, Giacinto, 83
Archipelago, 81-82
Arts and crafts of the Universe, 41
Arrows in the tombs, 5, 9-10, 13, 14, 19, 23
Art (painters, sculptors, craftsmen)
— Amato, Orazio, 105
— Ap_ap, Filippo, 105
— Apay, Willie, 123
— Baglioni, Giovanni, 99, 105
— Baldimonti, Giovanni, 120
— Baro, Dider, 101
— Barreto, Antonio, 113
— Becaruzii, Francesco, 118
— Bellant, Michele, 116, 117, 120
— Belvedere, Andrea, 113
— Biscay, Balthasar, 111
— Retti, Bernardino, 131n
— Boeche, Amadeo, 104
— Bonavia, Giorgio, 117
— Botticelli, Style of, 118
— Boucher, Francesco, 123
— Brunner, Leopold, 113
— Bell, Paul, 122
— Bussoltil, Salvatore, 99, 106
— Bussoltil, Stor (J), 106

163
NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

MAURICE AGIUS-VADALA studied at the Lyceum, Valletta, and the Royal University of Malta and he holds a Doctorate in Laws (LL.D.). In World War II he served with the Royal Malta Artillery and subsequently took over family business. He takes a keen interest in Maltese history and has carried out specialised research on old maps of Malta.

ANTHONY BONANNO holds a B.A. (Hons) from the University of Malta, a Doctorate in Littéres from the University of Palermo and a Ph.D from the University of London. He is a lecturer in Archaeology and Ancient History at the University of Malta. He took part in excavations in Malta, Sicily and Libya and was entrusted with the study and publication of specific categories of objects from these excavations. His specialised field of study is Roman Art and his publications on the subject include a monograph on Portraits and Other Heads on Roman Historical Relief (Oxford 1976) and various papers in learned journals. Since his appointment with the University of Malta he has been carrying out research on Maltese archaeology and has published a number of articles on various topics within that field. He is editor of Melita Historica.

MARIO BUHAGIAR holds a B.A. (Hons) and M.Phil, from the University of London and is currently researching for a Ph.D. from the same university. He has specialised in Art History and the Paleochristian Antiquities of the Maltese Islands and has contributed various papers to learned books and journals on Maltese Catacombs and rock-tombs, cave-dwellings, Medieval church buildings, vernacular architecture and art criticism. He is an occasional lecturer at the University of Malta and the Faculty of Theology at the Archiepiscopal Seminary of Malta. Between 1967—1971 he was attached to the National Museum Department to work on the compilation of the Protective Inventory of Monuments and sites which was being drawn up by the Malta Government with the co-operation of the Council for Cultural Co-operation. Among the objects for which he was entrusted he was the study and publication of specific categories, his specialised field of study is Roman Art and his publications include a monograph on Portraits and Other Heads on Roman Historical Relief (Oxford 1976) and various papers in learned journals. Since his appointment with the University of Malta he has been carrying out research on Maltese archaeology and has published a number of articles on various topics within that field. He is editor of Melita Historica.

PAUL CASSAR is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society of London. He holds a Doctorate in Medicine from the University of Malta and has specialised in Psychiatry. He has carried out extensive research work in various aspects of Maltese History. His Medical History of Malta (London, 1965) earned him international repute and the unique Honorary Fellowship of the University. His other publications include The Institutional Treatment of the Insane in Malta (1949), Landmarks in the Development of Forensic Medicine in Malta (1974), Early Relations between Malta and the USA (1976), Historical Development of the Concept of Diabetes in Malta (1982), The Ophthalmic Surgeon

176