ANTHONY BONANNO holds a B.A. (Gen) and a B.A. (Hons) from the Royal University of Malta, a Dottorato in Lettere Classiche/Archeologia from the University of Palermo and a Ph.D. from the University of London. He is lecturer in Archaeology and Ancient History at the University of Malta. He took part in excavations in Malta, Sicily and Libya and was entrusted with the study and publication of specific categories of objects from these excavations. His specialized field of study is Roman Art and his publications on the subject include a monograph of Portraits and other Heads on Roman Historical Relief (Oxford 1976), the chapter on Sculpture in M. Henig (ed.) A Handbook of Roman Art (Oxford 1983), and various papers in learned journals. Since his appointment with the University of Malta he has been carrying out research on Maltese archaeology and has published a number of articles on various topics within this field as well as An Illustrated Guide to Prehistoric Gozo (Malta 1986).

RAPHAEL BONNICI-CALI is a painter, an art-critic, a restorer of paintings and an author of various pamphlets and articles on Maltese history and folklore. He was trained under the direction of his great uncle, the painter Giuseppe Cali, at the Malta Government School of Arts and in Rome where he followed courses in restoration under Carlo Matteucci. His merits as an artist and a critic have been recognized by the Society of Arts. Manufacture and Commerce, which awarded him its Gold Medal in 1982. He is a Knight of the Magistral Grace of the Sovereign and Military Order of St. John.

MARIO BUHAGIAR holds a B.A. (Hons) and an M.Phil. from the University of London. He has specialized in Art History and the Palaeochristian Antiquities of the Maltese Islands and is the author of Late Roman and Byzantine Catacombs and Related Burial Places in the Maltese Islands (Oxford 1986). He has contributed various papers to learned books, journals and exhibition catalogues on Maltese Catacombs and rock-tombs, cave-dwellings, Medieval Church buildings, Vernacular architecture, ex-voto paintings and art criticism. He is an occasional lecturer in Art History and Appreciation at the University of Malta. Between 1967 and 1971 he was attached to the National Museum Department to work on the Compilation of the Protective Inventory of Monuments and Sites which was being drawn up with the co-operation of the Council for Cultural Co-operation of the Council of Europe. Editor of Proceedings of History Week 1981, 1982, 1983.

EMMANUEL FIORENTINO was born at Birkirkara in 1946 and was educated at The Lyceum, the Royal University of Malta and the Malta Polytechnic. He holds a B.A. (Hons.) degree in History of Art from the University of London and has been art critic of the local Sunday Times since 1975.

STANLEY FIORINI holds a B.Phil. from Heythrop College (Oxon.), an M.A. from Oxford University and a Ph.D. from the Open University (U.K.). He is lecturer in Mathematics at the University of Malta. Further to his specialization in Network Analysis, within which area of Mathematics he has several publications to his credit, he is interested in aspects of Maltese history, such as demography, to which a systematic, mathematical and computer-aided approach lends itself. He is the editor of Proceedings of History Week, 1984 and of Malta Historica, 1985.

ALBERT GANADO holds the degrees of B.A. and LL.D. from the University of Malta. He has compiled a detailed bibliography on the history of legislation in Malta and has published in local journals articles on the history of legislation, political history and postal history of Malta. In recent years his main interest has centred on the maps and prints of Malta. At the International Conference on the History of Cartography held in Italy in 1981 he read a paper on Italy's Contribution to the cartography of Malta in the 16th century. His writings on the history of cartography in general include articles in Imago Mundi (London) and in the Dictionary on the History of Cartography which is being published in Vienna. Since 1955 he has been a regular contributor to the Britannica Book of the Year on current events and he has also written for the Encyclopedia Britannica on the history of Malta, administrative and social conditions.

JOSEPH F. GRIMA was born at Qormi in 1945 and was educated at The Lyceum and the Royal University of Malta from where he graduated B.A. (Hons.) and M.A. in History. For a time he was occasional lecturer and examiner in History at the local university. He has published articles in Maltes Historica, Storja '78 and Hyphen about the naval history of Malta in the 17th century and has carried out research about the history of printing in Malta, his native village and the Maltese Holy Week processions. He edited Il-Knisja Parrokkjali ta' San Gorg Hal Qormi - Erba' Sekli ta' Storja and, over the years, has contributed historical articles to the local press. He is presently contributing two regular series of articles in The Democrat and reading for the Diploma in Education (Administration & Management) at the local university. He is the Hon. Secretary of The Historical Society (of Malta).

STEFANO GUGLIELMI holds a B.A. (Gen) from the University of Malta and a Doctorato in Lettere Classiche/Archeologia from the University of Palermo. He is Lecturer in Roman Art at the University of Malta and has published widely on the subject, as well as on Roman epigraphy. Since 1980 he has been a regular contributor to the Britannica Book of the Year on current events and he has also written for the Encyclopedia Britannica on the history of Malta, administrative and social conditions. He is interested in aspects of Maltese history, such as demography, to which a systematic, mathematical and computer-aided approach lends itself. He is the editor of Proceedings of History Week, 1984 and of Malta Historica, 1985.
